About Cathy Peters

From an early age Cathy preferred dogs to toys. As an adult she trained her own dogs to be well behaved at family functions. She also learned to handle in conformation dog shows, finishing champions for clients, and handling at the prestigious Westminster Kennel Club dog show. She handled her own dogs at trials for working titles.

In 1995 Cathy graduated from West Virginia Canine College where she learned the details of training personal protection dogs and rehabbing aggression problems. Her real sense of satisfaction comes from the balanced approach to training she offers to keep good dogs in good homes, helping the owner to learn the skills they need to be their dog's teacher, leader, and best friend.

And when she boards dogs at Hickory Grove Kennels, which she founded in 1988, she offers full service kenneling to make sure her guests are happy and their owners are worry free.

- Runs are heated and air-conditioned

Training

Board-n-Train Programs are for those who cannot set aside regular training time for their pet, or otherwise feel the need to have the pet worked with professionally.

Private lessons have helped many owners who simply like to train privately. And some dogs need to work without the distractions that make it difficult for them to learn.

Group classes are a fun, economical way to train from puppy socialization; through adolescence to a welcome citizen of the community. Classes are 1 hour per week.

Training at Hickory Grove is always done according to the nature of the dog. A balanced approach helps dog and owner truly communicate with each other to build a loving bond.
